CO-OPERATIVE EDUCATION AGAINST THE CRISES

PRESENTATIONS/WORKSHOPS/DISCUSSIONS

From the financial crises to the impacts of climate change and resource scarcity, we face considerable challenges but educational policy at times appears irrelevant by remaining fixed on a theoretically, morally, and practically bankrupt neoliberal project. Years of critique have failed to disrupt what appears to be heading towards the widespread privatisation of education in England.

4 JULY 2013
10AM - 4PM
CISTOWER,
MANCHESTER

ESRI and the Co-operative College are co-hosting an event that will bring together academics and practitioners to explore and develop the potential of the Co-operative school movement.

The day will feature keynote presentations from world-renowned critical educational scholar Prof. Mike Apple (University of Madison-Wisconsin) and Mervyn Wilson (Principal, Co-operative College), workshops from a range of Co-operative educational providers, and discussions focused on the practical tasks for supporting the emergence of the Co-operative school movement.
